

Pennsylvania Libraries: Research & Practice

Editorial

PaLRaP Welcomes New Co-Editor

Starting with this spring issue, Larissa Gordon is serving as co-editor of the journal. Larissa will be standing in for Anne Behler, a previous co-editor who is leaving PaLRaP, and we thank her for her service.

Larissa is an Instruction and Scholarly Communications Librarian at Arcadia University's Landman Library in Glenside, PA. Previously, she has worked for PaLRaP as a peer reviewer, and as a news editor. She has been an active member of the Pennsylvania Library Association's College and Research Division (PaLA-CRD) for many years, having started working for CRD after completing the PaLA Academy of Leadership Studies Workshop (PALS), eventually working her way up to serving as CRD chair. She is also active professionally in the American Library Association, and is currently serving on ALA's Intellectual Freedom Roundtable as chair of the Coalition Building Committee.